On May 7, 2009, the staff of the Taxpayer Accounting Section of the Revenue Operations Division of the Idaho State Tax Commission issued a Notice of Deficiency Determination to [Redacted] (taxpayer) proposing additional income tax and interest for the taxable year 2008 in the total amount of $466.34.

The taxpayer filed a timely appeal and petition for redetermination. The taxpayer did not respond to the Tax Commission's hearing rights letter and has provided nothing further for the Tax Commission to consider. The Tax Commission, having reviewed the file, hereby issues its decision.

The taxpayer timely filed his 2008 Idaho individual income tax return. During the processing of income tax returns, the taxpayer's return was identified as a return on which two dependent exemptions were claimed on more than one income tax return. The Taxpayer Accounting section (Taxpayer Accounting) requested information from the taxpayer. The taxpayer provided a copy of an ORDER OF FILIATION AND JUDGEMENT FOR CHILD SUPPORT. Taxpayer Accounting ultimately determined the taxpayer was not entitled to the dependent exemptions and sent the taxpayer a Notice of Deficiency Determination. The taxpayer protested Taxpayer Accounting's determination, so Taxpayer Accounting referred the matter for administrative review.

The Tax Commission reviewed the matter and sent the taxpayer a letter that discussed the methods available for redetermining a protested Notice of Deficiency Determination. The taxpayer failed to respond to the Tax Commission's letter, so the Tax Commission decided the matter based upon the information available.

The taxpayer was deemed the father [Redacted]. Through an order of the Court, the taxpayer was required to pay child support to the children's mother. The taxpayer was also awarded the dependent exemptions for the children, so he claimed [Redacted] on his 2008 Idaho individual income tax return.

Deductions are a matter of legislative grace, and taxpayers bear the burden of proving that they are entitled to the deductions claimed. INDOPCO, Inc. v. Commissioner, 503 U.S. 79, 84, 112 S.Ct. 1039, 117 L.Ed.2d 226 (1992); New Colonial Ice Co. v. Helvering, 292 U.S. 435, 440, 54 S.Ct. 788, 78 L.Ed. 1348 (1934). Internal Revenue Code (IRC) section 151(c) allows a taxpayer a deduction of the exemption amount for each dependent as defined in IRC section 152. A child of a taxpayer is generally a dependent of the taxpayer. However, IRC section 152(e) provides a special rule for parents who are divorced or no longer live together. It states in pertinent part:

(1) In general.

Notwithstanding subsection (c)(1)(B), (c)(4), or (d)(1)(C), if—

(A) a child receives over one-half of the child's support during the calendar year from the child's parents—

(i) who are divorced or legally separated under a decree of divorce or separate maintenance,

(ii) who are separated under a written separation agreement, or

(iii) who live apart at all times during the last 6 months of the calendar year, and—

(B) such child is in the custody of 1 or both of the child's parents for more than one-half of the calendar year, such child shall be treated as being the qualifying child or qualifying relative of the noncustodial parent for a calendar year if the requirements described in paragraph (2) or (3) are met.

(2) Exception where custodial parent releases claim to exemption for the year. For purposes of paragraph (1), the requirements described in this paragraph are met with respect to any calendar year if—

(A) the custodial parent signs a written declaration (in such manner and form as the Secretary may by regulations prescribe) that such custodial parent will not claim such child as a dependent for any taxable year beginning in such calendar year, and

(B) the noncustodial parent attaches such written declaration to the noncustodial parent's return for the taxable year beginning during such calendar year.

The taxpayer provided a judgment from the Court that stated he is allowed to claim the minor children for all state and federal income tax purposes. However, IRC section 152(e)(2) clearly requires that the custodial parent sign a written declaration releasing the dependency exemption in order for the noncustodial parent to claim the child's dependency exemption. The taxpayer provided no such declaration, nor did he show that he was the custodial parent.

The control over a child's dependency exemption conferred on the custodial parent by section 152(e)(2) was intended by Congress to simplify the process of determining who is entitled to claim dependency exemptions for children of a marriage. See H. Rept. 98-432 (Part 2), at 1498 (1984). To make section 152(e)(2) work as intended, that control must be preserved by insisting on adherence to the requirements of section 152(e)(2). Simply attaching a State court order that is not signed by the custodial parent to the return of the noncustodial parent does not satisfy the express statutory requirements of section 152(e)(2)(A). Miller v. CIR, 114 T.C. 184, (2000).

Since the signed release is a requirement for IRC section 152(e) to apply and no release form was provided, the determination of whether the taxpayer can claim the dependent exemptions reverts to IRC section 152(c) and (d).

IRC section 152(c) defines a "qualifying child" as an individual who: (1) bears a certain relationship to the taxpayer, such as the taxpayer's child; (2) has the same principal place of abode as the taxpayer for more than one-half of the taxable year; (3) meets certain age requirements; and (4) has not provided over one-half of the individual's own support for the taxable year. IRC section 152(c)(1) through (3).

IRC section 152(d) defines a “qualifying relative” as an individual: (1) who bears a certain relationship to the taxpayer, such as the taxpayer’s child; (2) whose gross income for the taxable year is less than the exemption amount; (3) with respect to whom the taxpayer provides over one-half of the individual’s support for the taxable year; and (4) who is not a qualifying child of the taxpayer or of any other taxpayer for the taxable year. IRC section 152(d)(1) and (2).

To claim a dependent exemption, the taxpayer must show he has either a qualifying child or a qualifying relative. Regarding a qualifying child, the taxpayer has not shown that [Redacted] principal place of abode was with him for more than one-half the taxable year. Consequently, he has not met his burden of proof of showing that [Redacted] were qualifying children in 2008. As for meeting the requirements for a qualifying relative of the taxpayer, the taxpayer failed to show that he provided over one-half of [Redacted] support for the taxable year or that [Redacted] were not qualifying children of any other taxpayer for the taxable year. It is presumed from the fact that the taxpayer is required to pay child support that [Redacted] were in the physical custody of their mother in 2008. This being the case, [Redacted] were likely the qualifying child of another taxpayer. Regardless, the taxpayer has not carried his burden of proving [Redacted] were his qualifying relative in 2008.

Because the taxpayer has failed to establish that [Redacted] were either qualifying children or qualifying relatives for purposes of IRC section 152, the Tax Commission finds that the taxpayer is not entitled to a dependency exemption deduction for either [Redacted] for 2008. Additionally, since the taxpayer is not entitled to the dependent exemptions for the children, he is also not entitled to the Idaho grocery credit for the children.

WHEREFORE, the Notice of Deficiency Determination dated May 7, 2009, is hereby APPROVED, AFFIRMED, and MADE FINAL.

IT IS ORDERED and THIS DOES ORDER that the taxpayer pay the following tax and interest (computed to February 5, 2010):

YEAR	TAX	INTEREST	TOTAL
2008	$465	$ 19	$484

DEMAND for immediate payment of the foregoing amount is hereby made and given.

An explanation of the taxpayer's right to appeal this decision is enclosed.
