

BEFORE THE TAX COMMISSION OF THE STATE OF IDAHO

In the Matter of the Protest of)

Petitioner.)	DECISION

On December 5, 2012, the Idaho State Tax Commission (Commission) issued a Notice of Deficiency Determination (NODD) to [Redacted] (taxpayer) denying the additional dependency exemption deduction and grocery credit claimed for taxable year 2011.

The taxpayer did not respond to a letter outlining his alternatives for redetermining a protested NODD, nor did he request a hearing. The Commission, having reviewed the file, hereby issues its decision.

The sole issue for this decision is whether the taxpayer is entitled to a dependency exemption deduction for his child. In support of his claim, the taxpayer provided pages 1, 6, and 7 of the Stipulation issued by the Fifth Judicial District Court of Idaho. The Stipulation, however, does not give the child’s name, date of birth, or date signed or entered as a court document. From the pages provided, we are unable to determine if the taxpayer is entitled to the dependency exemption.

Taxpayers may claim dependency exemption deductions for their dependents as defined in Internal Revenue Code (IRC) § 152. Under IRC § 152(a), the term “dependent” means a qualifying child or qualifying relative. A qualifying child is defined as an individual who (1) bears a certain relationship to the taxpayer, such as the taxpayer’s child, (2) has the same principal place of abode as the taxpayer for more than one-half of the taxable year, (3) meets certain age requirements, and (4) has not provided over one-half of the individual's own support for the taxable year. IRC § 152(c)(1)-(3).

However, the dependency exemption, as a general rule, is limited under IRC § 152(e)(1) as follows: if the child received over one-half of his support during the calendar year from his parents who live apart at all times during the last 6 months of the calendar year and the child is in the custody of one or both parents for more than one-half of the calendar year, then the child is treated as the qualifying child of the noncustodial parent if certain requirements are met. The requirements are met if (1) the custodial parent signs a written declaration (in such manner and form as the Secretary may prescribe) that the custodial parent will not claim the child as a dependent for the taxable year; and (2) the noncustodial parent attaches the written declaration to the noncustodial parent's return for the taxable year. IRC § 152(e)(2).

The term "custodial parent" is defined in IRC § 152(e)(4)(A) as the parent having custody for the greater portion of the calendar year. In response to a request for information, the taxpayer stated he had joint custody of the child, and indicated he spent 30 days with him during taxable year 2011. Based on this response, the taxpayer would not be considered the child's custodial parent. Consequently, the taxpayer has no qualifying child for taxable year 2011.

An exception to the above rule is provided in IRC section 152(e)(2) in that if the parent having custody elects to release his claim to exemption for the children in his custody for the year in question and supplies a written release to that effect, and if the noncustodial parent receiving the right to claim the dependency exemption attaches such waiver to the tax return, then the waiver will be honored and the noncustodial parent may claim the dependency exemption for the child.

The stipulation states that the taxpayer is entitled to the dependency exemption for his minor child. However, the mere fact that the State court granted the taxpayer the right to claim the dependency exemption deduction is immaterial because a state court cannot determine issues of Federal tax law. Id. See Commissioner v. Tower, 327 U.S. 280 (1946); Kenfield v. United States, 783 F.2d 966 (10th Cir.1986); Nieto v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo.1992-296. The taxpayer's remedy, if any, lies in the State court for enforcement of the Order.

The taxpayer has not shown he is the custodial parent and does not have a signed release from the custodial parent. Therefore, the taxpayer is not entitled to the dependency exemption.

THEREFORE, the Notice of Deficiency Determination dated December 5, 2012, and directed to [Redacted] is APPROVED, AFFIRMED, and MADE FINAL.

IT IS ORDERED and THIS DOES ORDER that the taxpayer pay the following tax and interest:

YEAR	TAX	INTEREST	TOTAL
2011	$91.79	$4.08	$95.87

Interest is computed through July 12, 2013.

DEMAND for immediate payment of the foregoing amount is hereby made and given.

An explanation of the taxpayer's right to appeal this decision is enclosed.
