General Instructions

A net operating loss (NOL) occurs when the amount of Idaho taxable income, after making modifications, is less than zero. Idaho calculates the Idaho NOL differently than the federal NOL, so you always must add back the NOL claimed on your federal income tax return. Idaho allows a deduction to individuals, C corporations, trusts, and estates. S corporations and partnerships aren't allowed an NOL deduction. Instead, any losses pass through to the shareholders and partners.

You can use an NOL by deducting it from your income in another year or years.

A net operating loss calculated by an affected business entity (ABE) may not be passed through to its member, but may be carried forward as an Idaho net operating loss to succeeding taxable years for which the ABE elects to be subject to tax as an ABE.

If the ABE does not make an ABE election in any succeeding taxable year, the unused Idaho net operating loss will flow through to the members.

Include Form 56 or your own schedule with the return for any year you compute an NOL. Also, include Form 56A showing the NOL carryforward/carryback calculation, if applicable.
